

The Broadcom Foundation Supports "CHOOSE NURSING, CHOOSE HOAG."

The U.S. nursing shortage is projected to grow to 260,000 registered nurses by 2025 as large numbers of RNs retire and The Broadcom Foundation is supporting nursing education in Orange County. The Broadcom Foundation is partnering with Hoag Memorial Hospital Presbyterian to help educate nursing students from area colleges who perform their clinical rotations at Hoag, distinguished as a "Magnet" hospital by the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC).

Broadcom created Broadcom Foundation in 2009 to enable young people from all walks of life to enter careers in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM). In partnership with local schools, colleges, universities and non-profit organizations, Broadcom Foundation funds in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM).

"With this gift in support of nursing education, Broadcom Foundation satisfies two fundamental goals of its mission: to fund science education and support premier health services that Hoag Hospital provides to citizens of Orange County," said Executive Director, Paula Golden. "We are pleased to help light the career path for the next generation of nurses."
